ents—Large Enrollment.

In a sister contest Saturday afternoon on the Pumpkin Roller lot across the Oslo the Hardsburg Base-Ball team went down in defeat to the tune of 5 to 3. The pumpkin Rollers played their same old game on the home lot and when a batted ball would hit the ground they knew where it would hit next and were there and as a consequence, the winner was thrown out. It wold he be hard Hardsburg's game probably as Schleicher, their pitcher struck out ten men but did not have a support.

House Party At Glendale.

Our readers will recall without much trouble our often expressed determination not to take active partisan part between candidates for democratic nominations. So do we intend now to do so? We have been told that the political situation developed and so many extraordinary things done, we feel that our readers are entitled to know what is going on.

The race for the nomination is now between Wm. Adams, of Nelson county; Ben Johnson, of Nelson county; W. O. Head, of Louisville; John K. Hendrick, of McCracken, and ex-Governor McCreary, of Madison county, and was proceeding in a most satisfactory manner until the Veteran McCreary came into the race as a compromise candidate, but instead of bringing peace he has raised a row.

Coming as the special entry of ex-Governor Beckman, Mr. McCreary's entry has brought forth the following statement, which we publish to show our readers what is thought of his candidacy:

"Ex-Senator McCreary has announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for Governor of Kentucky, notwithstanding the fact that only a few weeks ago he said he would no longer accept the nomination if it were given to him. He based this attitude upon the ground that forty years in office was enough to ask of the party. More than this, when he was defeated for a re-nomination by United States Senator by Beckman—who he himself had helped to nominate—he was at an end in the ranks of the Democratic party, he bolted and tried to be elected United States Senator over Beckman, who had defeated him for the nomination."

Everybody in Kentucky remembers how two years ago, McCreary sought to be nominated in the primary, and everybody remembers how he remained a candidate before the Legislature, and how many times he got bolting Democrats to vote for him upon bolts when the voter gotten by him would have elected Beckman; and everybody remembers that McCreary continued to run, coupled with Beckman, until Beckman was defeated; and everybody remembers that it's a speech made by Beckman at a banquet at Frankfort, just after his defeat, that he made said.

"My opponent (McCreary) in the primary bolted my nomination and aided in my defeat."

This speech was made on March 12, 1908.

Besides this, everybody remembers that Beckman charged in many speeches he made in the campaign between him and McCreary, that McCreary was the candidate of the whisky ring. Now comes Beckman and Percy Haley to urge McCreary's nomination for Governor. Is this because "bolting" the Democratic ticket is less offensive to them since they themselves have become "bolters"?

Let us not, in passing, fail to remark upon another Beckman change of front in his opinions as conditions changed. He and the lamego Goebel went into office on the result of a popular uprising against Beckman. Beckman was fair as far as to lay at the door of that company a large part of the damning conspiracy by which Goebel was assassinated. Let us not forget that Beckman went into office under those conditions, and that he came out of office, and is now the same as he was before he became Governor.

Where oh where—Governor Beckman, do you wish to lead us now? Will we follow? Nay, nay, Pauline."—Carlyle Mercury.

The soothing spray of Ely's Liquid Cream Balm, used in an atomizer, is an insipid relief to sufferers from Catarrh. Some of these describe it as a Godsend, and no wonder. The thick, adhesive discharge is dislodged by the spray breathes freely, perhaps for the first time in months. Ely's Liquid Cream Balm contains all the healing, purifying elements of the solid form, and it never fails to satisfy. Sold by all druggists for 25 cents, including spraying tube, or mailed by Ely Bros., 56 Warren Street, New York.

The Attraction.

NATURE TELLS YOU

As Many a Cloverport Reader
Knows Too Well.

When the kidneys are sick,
Nature tells us all about it.
The urine is nature's calendar;
Infrequent or too frequent action;
Any urinary trouble tells of kidney ills.

Doan's Kidney Pills cure all kidney
ills.

People in this vicinity testify to this. R. G. Pendleton, Owensesboro, Ky., says: "I suffered severely from disordered kidneys, pains and lameness in my back, and frequent headaches. There was also a soreness in my neck and the kidney secretion was unusual and irregualr in quantity. I could stand and sit tired nearly all the time. I at length procured a box of Doan's Kidney Pills and while I have not taken them strictly according to directions, they have given me great relief. Doan's Kidney Pills have my highest endorsement."

IMPRESSIONS

Of An Old Timer—Rev. S. C. Bates
Writes of His Visit To Breckridge This Summer.

Dear Mr. Babbage—Having reached home after a delightful visit to the old home I thought I will ask you through your valuable columns to convey a few thoughts to my friends. It has been a good many years since I have spent as long a time in the country and I have never enjoyed a visit more thoroughly than I did this one. There were some sad things. Some of the old friends are gone. Dr. Newson, John Keith and my step-father, Samuel Muffett, had always been there when I made my visits. The men of their generation are not many now. A. R. Fisher is the only man in the same business that he was in when I left Cloversport in 1872. I spent a longer time in the old home than I had since I left it a boy. The old house never looked so bad as it does now, and the kindness shown me by John Jennings and his family makes me understand why Breckenridge County has always been famous for its homes, and its generous hospitality.

I had a picture made of the old home, which I hope to keep as long as I live. And I started a movement that I hope will result in keeping the family burying ground in better condition. The two best improved farms of my boyhood memory were those of my grandfather, Rev. S. C. Bates, and of Mr. John Hardin. Both have fallen into such decay as to be scarcely recognized, but many other places have been improved in appearance.

The Monday barbecue was a delight. I had a large bunch of my large gathering in the old town since the old fair on the hill, which can only be remembered by the oldest inhabitants. The barbecue was a success in every way, especially in the feature that appealed to me, that of bringing together old friends. I met boyhood companions whom I had not met for years, and may never meet again. It was worth the cost of the trip to see two such splendid old people as uncle Willis Noell and his wife. They have certainly learned how to grow old gracefully, respected and loved by all who knew them.

I have not often had a real vacation, and I feel already a longing to go back for another summer vacation, visiting the old friends, walking over the hills and catching the bass and bantcher out of Clover Creek. Sincerely yours,

S. C. Bates,

Marion, Ohio, Sept. 6, 1910.

BIG PRICES FOR MULES

At Boughman's big sale of mules in Lincoln county last week, all records were broken in prices paid for mules. A sucking mule colt at its mother's side brought $665. Mr. Boughman's three year old horse mule, "Roman Nose," brought $395. A mare mule brought $350. The total sum says the Interior Journal of the Boughman sale was $20,000.

These sales ought to be encouraging to mule raisers in this country. What is done in Lincoln can be done in Breckenridge.

Mendacious Journalism

Reprinted from an article by Theodore Roosevelt in The Outlook, special arrangement with the author. Copyright, 1910, by the Outlook Publishing Company. All rights reserved.

In the New York Evening Post of Friday, August 26, there appeared in an editorial article the following statement:

"I will make the corporations come to me. But did he not really mean that he would make them come down with the cash to elect him, as he did before? For a man with Mr. Roosevelt's proved record it is simply disgusting to think for him to raise such a question. The small bosses whom he fawned when he was president and wanted their money for his campaign. Does he think that nobody has a memory which goes back to the life insurance investigations, and the 350,000 taken from widows and orphans and added to Theodore Roosevelt's political corruption fund? Did he not take a big check from the Beef trust, and glad to get it? And now he is going to make the corporations come to him? One can have respect for a sincere, radical, for an honest fanatic, as an agitator or leviathan who believes that he is doing God's will; but it is hard to be patient with a man who has been a capitalist, but who says he is always in the main chaste politically, and who lets no friendship, no generosity, no principle, no moral scruple stand for a moment between himself and the goal upon which he has set his overreaching ambition."

This, however, is the chief, this most far-fetched, of the many stories told by the man who was for years, when in political life, the worst political corruptionist of his day: who raised the height of his power, always on good terms with Roosevelt; it was Roosevelt who, in 1908, wrote an open letter urging the re-election of Speaker Cannon, against whom Roosevelt had previously written; it was Roosevelt who, in 1908, wrote Roosevelt to the White House secretly, who took big money to buy votes in New York, and who afterwards wrote to "My Dear Sherman"—yes, to Sherman—reviling the capitalist to whom he had previously written, still persisting in the same language which the Evening Post comes to the defense of those in present control of the Republican party in New York state, whom it has affected to oppose in the past, the Evening Post through its editor personally wrote the article, practised every known form of mendacity.

Probably the Evening Post regards the decoupage as outworn; it will see that the new edition is as mendacious as strongly as itself. To take but one instance out of the many in this article, the Evening Post says: "It was Roosevelt who asked Harriman to come to the White House secretly, who took big money to buy votes in New York, and who afterwards wrote to 'My Dear Sherman'—yes, to Sherman—reviling the capitalist to whom he had previously written, saying: 'You and I are practical men.'"

The Evening Post is not in itself sufficiently important to warrant an answer, but as representing a class with whose sympathies and principles it is in an genuine movement for decent government, it is worth while to speak of it. There are plenty of wealthy people in this country, and of intellectual and social merit of wealth people, who desire to do something for the movement for reform, which does not touch the wickedness of certain great corporations and of certain men of great wealth. People of this class will be in favor of an aesthetic criticism of the grafting politician, against the small grafting politician, against the grafting labor leader, or any man of that stamp; but they can even on opening to buy votes or not any other purpose. Whoever wrote the article in the Evening Post in question knew that this was the foulest and basest lie when he wrote it, and that it had been written in a letter in which I have written to Mr. Harriman as follows: 'What I have to say to you can be said to you as well after election as before, but I would like to see you accept my offer and write to my friend.' I am quoting without the letter before me, but the quotation is substantially, if not verbally, accurate. That statement in this letter to Harriman is of course on its face absolutely incomprehensible, unless it means that Harriman is asking him for campaign funds, for it is of course out of the question that I could tell him equally well what I had to say after election if it referred to any particular way of buying votes. After election, however, it is so clear that any pretense of misunderstanding is proof positive of the basest dishonesty in whoever wrote the article in question.

As a matter of fact, when Mr. Harriman could not come to the station, without remonstrance, the world would not turn over for the use of the state campaign in which he was interested funds to run that campaign, and to ask me to tell Cortelyou to give him a place at the station. Mr. Cortelyou, familiar with the facts, in objecting, spoke of the statements of the Evening Post not only false and malicious, is not only in direct contradiction of the facts, but is such that it cannot possibly have been made by a man who, however, the facts deliberately intended to pervert them. Such an act stands on a level of infamy with the worst act ever performed by a corrupt member of the legislature or city council, and it is the writer who, with the same moral brand that沾了 the bribe-taker.

I have seen only a telegraphic abstract of the article, apparently containing quotations from it. Practically every statement made in these quotations is falsehood.

To bar one shall I adduce. The article speaks of me having attacked corporations, and, referring directly to my Ohio speeches, of my having "sought to inflame the mob and make them riotous." In those speeches the principal topic was to be made, in defense as shown by the labor people who are engaged in controversy with a corporation. My statement was in effect that the first duty of the state was to the first duty of the official was to protect the people, to do away with mob violence, and that after such action had been taken, then it was the duty of officials to investigate the corporation, and if it had done wrong to make it pay the penalty of its wrongs to the people against whom it had done wrong in the future. It is but another instance of the peculiar baseness, the peculiar moral obliquity, of the Evening Post that it should pervert the truth to shameless a fashion.

The piano will be given away June 30, 1911, and will cost the one receiving it absolutely nothing. We do this in order to show the citizens of this community our appreciation of their trade, and to induce new customers to trade here. There will be absolutely no advance in prices, in fact the prices on some lines will be lower than usual, because during this contest we will put on special sales of goods at reduced prices. We are going to make this contest interesting to everybody, and want all of our regular customers to bring their friends to the store. We want everybody to come in and examine the piano. ~

Of Interest to Everyone

All the people in this community should take an interest in this piano contest. The piano belongs to the public, and it is for the public to decide who shall receive it. It would be a splendid instrument for a school or Sunday-school. It would be a proud and imposing addition to any lodge room. There are also many young ladies who have musical ability, who are worthy of possessing this piano, but we do not wish to attempt to include all of the possible persons to whom the piano could be given, because we want the matter to be decided by the public.

Certificates Transferable

If you do not want to enter the contest yourself, you can transfer your certificates to any friend or any society in which

We will keep a list of these nominations, but of course, unless the certificates, (which are given only to those who pay cash for goods) are secured and voted, the nomination will not affect the final disposition of the piano, but will merely show your preference and give others the same opportunity.

STORIES WRITTEN

While The Press Thunders

BY LOUISE

School opened Monday and the slate and pens have been set to work by now.

We are glad the little tots are in two new rooms to make them more comfortable. We sincerely trust that this will be the best year of their training and that they will not be interrupted in any way from their school duties.

A few children have interests outside of school that distract their minds from study, one is that "soap business". Several of the small girls last year ran the streets continually after school hours and between sessions, taking orders for soap. It was not at all necessary and it was a source of annoyance to their friends. These children have parents who provide for them well, and it is surprising they are permitted to tramp the streets to sell soap.

There is no disgrace in peddling soap, but there is a contamination about it that a child should not be allowed to suffer. If there were a certain soap peddler here, I would tell him to stop peddling. He is breaking the law.

Oil of the Porpoise.

The porpoises killed in winter are the fattest and produce most oil. The largest size measure about seven feet in length, five feet in girth and weigh about 300 pounds. Such a porpoise yields from six to seven gallons of oil. The blubber of a big porpoise weighs about 400 pounds, being one and a half inches thick in summer and two in winter. The jaws of the porpoise yield a superior quality of oil. When hung up in the sun it readily dries away into cans provided for the purpose, the quantity of oil thus prepared, however, being not quite so good as that from the jaw. The oil from the blubber gives an excellent light and is in demand along the coast for lighthouse use. It has no offensive odor.

BIG CONTRAST IN METHODS

Difference in Way American and Canadian Authorities Deal With the Indians.

A recently issued book on "The Redskins of the Plains," an account of the northwestern mounted police of Canada, published in 1908, gives a number of instances showing the difference between the Canadian and the United States methods of treating the Indians. One of these instances set the author against the Canadian Indians, who had been concerned in the half-breeds' rebellion of many years ago, fled over the border to the states. These most undesirable immigrants were told they must go back. The Canadian government finally said it would take care of these Indians if the states would send them over the border. And here is the conclusion of the story:

In due course 200 very dissatisfied and half-crazed Crees, with 450 horses, were rounded up and started northward, with a strong force of United States cavalry in attendance. They were met at the boundary line by three mounted policemen, one corporal and two troopers.

The American commanding officer looked at them with a surprised air. "Where's your escort for these Indians?" he asked.

"We're here," answered the corporal.

"Yes, yes, I see. But where's your regiment?"

"I guess it's here, all right," said the corporal. "The other fellow's looking after the breakfest things."

"But are there only four of you, then?"

"That's so, colonel, but you see, we wear the queen's scarlet."

And these four recruits were all the western mess to take these 200 Indians, their horses and belongings a distance of more than one hundred miles into Canadian territory where they could neither the United States nor more.

MAKE YOUR RAG RUGS.
Designs Simple or Elaborate as You Please

Would you like to have a unique rug? If so save your scraps and bits of woolen materials to make one.

The term rag carpet or rug to most of us is intimately associated with homes of faded splendor, and in our minds eye immediately comes the vision of a comfortable room with rows of shrub pots and pans, the plaid rug and easy old rocking chair before the fire. Though formerly relegated to this humble position, today

the term is used to denote the floor covering of the modern home.

Making a Rug.

we see in our best show floor coverings of quaint design fashioned of rags.

With the craze for old fashioned rug one should begin as follows: First decide upon the size. The foundation of the rug is a piece of burlap, crepe, or some such material. Cut it to the required size and four pieces of burlap. Draw with a piece of chalk your design, which should be as accurate as possible. When this is satisfied over the lines with blue ink to make the rug more attractive. Then lay the burlap with a bone crocheting needle of medium size. Cut the material in strips, one-half inch wide. Hold the strip in a loop on the underside of the burlap.

Recipes For Sweet Fritters.

Drop French fritters in the same way as you do the cake pieces in with a little lemon juice and powdered sugar and put outside for an hour. Beat two eggs, add one-half of a saltspoonful of salt, a tablespoonful of melted butter and a pinch of a teaspoonful of nutmeg and cinnamon to taste. To make this batter add one-quarter of a teaspoonful of baking powder. Dip each piece of fruit into the batter, fry in hot fat, drain and dust with sugar.

Fruit Fritters. Remove the skin from fruit, cut in halves.

Fill five tablespooms of flour into a bowl and the yolks of two eggs, a dessert spoonful of salted oil, salt, one-half of a teaspoonful of milk; beat until smooth and fold in the beaten whites of the egg. Add a few pieces of fruit in the batter and fry in hot fat, drain and dust with vanilla syrup.

Hot Bread Theory Exploded.

In the last issue I wrote about the fact that department stores were buying bread and breaking the old theory about the unwholesomeness of hot breads, at least in part, discredited, so that those who for years have been forewarning this toothsome delicacy in the future eat and be glad.

Plain Fritters. Take small stale sponge cakes, cut them in halves, between a thick layer of raspberry jam between the two halves and dip them in batter. Dip each cake in batter and brown in boiling lard. Dust in sugar and serve with vanilla syrup.

The reason for this is simple. In the smaller bakes there is a greater amount of yeast and the bread is leavened and broken down the old way about the unwholesomeness of hot breads is, at least in part, discredited, so that those who for years have been forewarning this toothsome delicacy in the future eat and be glad.
